2011 CEC Conference

World Heritage at Risk

We are pleased to announce the launch of the conference series on Culture, Economics and Cities (CEC). The conference series aims to gather scholars working at the boundaries of various disciplines such as economics, regional science, planning, tourism, conservation and architecture.

We wish to spur debate on topical urban issues, identifying cutting-edge methodologies in order to analyse them within a multidisciplinary perspective, with a clear economic emphasis. We aim to identify a network of selected high profile scientists exchanging high quality research and ideas on specific urban studies research challenges brought by contemporary cities, both in developed and developing countries.

The 2011 CEC international conference on World Heritage at Risk will create new synergies between academic approaches and disciplines, focusing on the preservation and economic valuation of urban cultural heritage at risk in its various, tangible and intangible forms.

The event is open to the greater urban studies scientific community and to planning authorities, as well as stakeholders who are involved in the management and conservation of diverse cultural heritage and in the preservation of heritage at risk.

The conference will discuss the challenges involved in multidisciplinary research focusing on urban heritage conservation/valorisation in a world where the issues related to cultural diversity, armed conflicts, climate change risks, and increasing tourism demands pose threats to various heritage expressions. These form the four themes around which the conference is articulated. The event will see the participation of world experts in cultural economics, regional science and conservation of tangible and intangible heritage.

Papers submission

Conference themes

The conference is articulated into four main themes:

- Heritage and climate change
- Heritage and diversity
- Heritage in conflict areas
- Tourism carrying capacity and World Heritage Sites management plans

Each theme will be discussed by a high profile speaker who will contribute with his/her expertise to the academic exchange. The strong link among cultural goods, the economics of regions and cities sustainable development will be explored.

A restricted number of papers will be selected following the call for papers.

Submission

Abstracts

Max 500 words (or full papers) have to be submitted as a word document no later than 10 August 2011.

Abstracts need to indicate:

Paper title
Name
Surname and affiliation of all authors
Email address for corresponding author
Keywords

To submit your abstract/paper visit the papers submission section at www.cecseries.org, or email: patrizia.riganti@nottingham.ac.uk

Poster sessions

The conference offers the possibility for authors to present their papers as a poster. Please indicate in your email whether you prefer submitting your paper to an oral session, a poster session, either-or.

PhD sessions

PhD students are given the chance to submit their papers to a dedicated special session, intended to let brilliant young researchers present their work. To submit the paper for PhD sessions indicate "PhD session" in your email subject.

Notification of acceptance

Abstract acceptance will be communicated within two weeks of submission and no later than 18 August 2011. In order to avoid no shows in the programme, participants presenting papers should register and make their payment before 25 August 2011.
